Perfect pilgrims

Pilgrims have been absent from this land since about the 1600s, historians say, but several local youngsters are challenging that claim. Students at Wick Elementary School in Romulus donned costumes fresh off the Mayflower this morning in observance of Thanksgiving and the meaning of the holiday. Youngsters at the local YMCA commemorated the holiday in a similar fashion last week. Here Michael Porenta (front), Tamekia Brown (right) and Julie Diehl (behind) rehearse their roles for a Thanksgiving skit. For a complete photostory on the events, see page B-1. Police officers escape injury in narcotics raid

By BOB DENYS
ANP Staff Writer

Six shots were fired and came within inches of six officers who raided a suspected dope house in the north end of Romulus Friday.

"It's a miracle we're alive," said Sgt. David Early who, with two other Romulus officers and three state police officers from the downriver area Narcotics Office, initiated the raid at a house in the 6300 block of Edmond at 10:15 a.m. Friday.

"It was scary," recalled Early. "We announced who we were at the front door and then forced it open. There were three men. One ran into the bedroom and began shooting through the door and the walls. He fired six rounds from a 12-gauge shotgun. We took what cover we could and laid on the floor. No officer was hit, but we were missed by inches, myself included.

"At that point he threw the gun down and surrendered. The officers showed great restraint and did not fire a shot. The situation was awkward because you did not know who or where the shots were coming from," Early said.

The house had been under surveillance for some time and about three weeks ago a thorough investigation was initiated. The joint effort of the Romulus and DRANO officers as well as frequent calls from area residents about the suspected drug house were credited with the bust.

The search warrants were obtained by DRANO with the information from the Romulus police.

In the house, police found four rifles, one shotgun, one handgun and a supply of ammunition. They confiscated a quantity of packaged "crack" cocaine, drug paraphernalia and $700 in cash. Under the law, police can seize items believed to be used in the transaction of drug sales, according to Early, and in this case they confiscated a television set and video cassette recorder.

Police are seeking warrants for the arrest of the three Romulus men, two 28-year-olds and a 50-year-old.

"We suspect these guys were dealing small amounts of drugs to a lot of people. We are very, very fortunate somebody did not get killed. This was the third time I was involved in such a situation. You don't get used to it," Early said.

Tax tiff continues

Schools may fight city in court

By BOB DENYS
ANP Staff Writer

Mayor Beverly McAnally fears a possible lawsuit against the city by the school district could create a schism that would negatively affect the future economic development of Romulus.

Members of the school board met with members of city council in a special meeting at city hall on Monday night.

Dr. William Bedell, superintendent of public schools, said the school board has sought a legal opinion about the legality of Tax Increment Financing district in the city, specifically in the Wick Road area.

The specifics and legal questions of TIFA have recently generated concern in many cities throughout Michigan. In September, the state House of Representatives passed two bills regarding TIFA and the Senate hopes to pass similar bills before the end of this year, according to Rep. James Kosteva who attended the special meeting on Monday.

TIFA allows a city to finance public improvements in designated areas by "capturing" property taxes levied on any increase in property values within the area, according to the bill. This money would then be used to improve roads, sewers and other infrastructures within the district.

Forty-four cities in Michigan utilize TIFA to support 61 different projects. The city of Romulus currently has three TIFA districts and would like to extend the boundaries of the Wick Road district. A public hearing is scheduled for Dec. 8.

In the city of Romulus, 70 percent of the total millage levied on property is funneled into the school district, according to officials.

At the present time, Livingston County has filed suit against the city of Howell. It questions the constitutionality of the TIFA procedure because it diverts property taxes voted for a specific purpose to another purpose.

Bedell agrees. "It is unconstitutional to use school district funds for the building of local roads or sewers. We have no problem with economic development in the city but not at the expense of money voted for students and their schools," he said.

"Seventy percent of nothing is nothing," noted McAnally, who added that little money was generated from these properties in the TIFA districts before they were developed.

Bedell countered that the Wick Road district, the area north of the airport, doesn't need incentives for commercial development.

Measles cases still popping out

Fifty cases of measles have been reported as of Friday in the Romulus school system, according to Dr. Donald Lawrenchuk, medical director for the Wayne County Health Department.

"The disease has spread to 13 communities in 29 schools. Wayne County has recorded 81 cases, still with the bulk of the cases in Romulus," he said.

To date, 27 of those cases were found at the junior high school. Lawrenchuk emphasized that the majority of cases are still found among the ages 12, 13 and 14.

"The disease isn't stopping nor is it coming in droves. But we're not taking any chances.

It's not worth it. The disease is too risky," said Claude Siders, director of special education in Romulus.

This highly contagious disease is called the "10 day measles or hard measles or rubella," according to Lawrenchuk.

The measles have an approximate incubation period of 10 days. Which refers to the "period of communicability, five days before the onset of a rash and five days after," he added.

Lawrenchuk recommends that parents not send their children to school with the slightest symptoms, which closely relate of those of a cold, nor when they are recovering from the disease, until at least five days after the onset of the rash.

"The disease is one of the most infectious diseases we know about. The health department strongly urges every household member to review their immunization history of preventable diseases. Three cases in the county have required hospitalization. One of every 3,000 cases will result in a death," he said.

He attributes the steady increase of infection in the social activities, dances and sporting events common among teenagers at this time of year.

Youths arrested for cemetery vandalism

Van Buren Township police have arrested four teenage youths, three of whom are Romulus residents, in connection with vandalism of the Tyler Road Cemetery last week.

The youths, whose ages range from 16 to 18, are accused of vandalizing about 125 tombstones and causing between $7,000 to $10,000 in damages to the tombstones during the weekend of Nov. 14-15.

"We will be seeking warrants on Wednesday for the four suspects," said Van Buren Township Police Chief Joseph Davies. "We believe that there is sufficient evidence to charge them with the act."

Davies said that two of the youths are 16 years old while the other two suspects are 17 and 18 years old. He said only one of the four was a Van Buren Township resident.

It was the first time in recent years that the cemetery had been vandalized. Davies noted that vandalism has not been a problem at the cemetery.

There are approximately 550 tombstones in the cemetery, some dating back to the early 1800s.

A special Thanksgiving

The Soup Kettle in the Burton Building on Beverly Road in Romulus served Thanksgiving dinner four days early to 100 hungry residents. The kitchen is funded completely with donations and operated by volunteers and caters to mostly low-income clients. The facility, at 35408 Beverly Road, east of Wayne, is open from 12 to 2 p.m., Monday, Wednesday and Friday, September through June. Melvin and Dorothy Byrd of Romulus, pictured on right, initiated the operation four years ago. Lizzie Johnson and Betty Daigle on the left, enjoy their volunteer time spent in the kitchen. Illegal airport parking profits city

By BOB DENYS
ANP Staff Writer

Thanks to all those Metro Airport travelers who parked illegally but repented and paid their fines, the city of Romulus is a lot richer, and their cash register rings up a annual total of about $250,000, according to Sgt. William Wadsworth of the sherriff department and also a Romulus city councilman.

The city just deposited a check for $137,310, half of the annual earning, courtesy of the Wayne County sheriff department who award the tickets and the 34th District Court which collects the fines, explained Wadsworth who credits the airport expansion for this windfall. fall.

"Since 1982, when the airport saw about one million passengers a year until this year, with almost 20 million people expected, the city of Romulus is definitely benefiting and each year the amount is increasing. More people are coming through and more people are illegally parking," he said adding that 80 percent of the tickets issued are paid.

The money goes into the general fund of the city.

"That's a nice little figure which doesn't hurt the city. It's kind of an unknown secret," he confessed.

Romulus resident's quest to capture Miss Michigan crown

By BOB DENYS
ANP Staff Writer

Here she comes, and this year the winner of the 1986 Miss Michigan USA pageant could be 18-year-old Crystal Riopelle of Romulus.

At least Riopelle hopes so, as does her family and several local businesses who have sponsored her. Within four days, Riopelle aggressively sought and received the $400 from area businesses necessary to compete in the pageant.

Those sponsors are: Draw-Tite of Canton, McDonald's of Belleville, Matador Hair Salon of New Boston, and from Romulus: Davis Autobody Craftsman, Inc., Express Tool and Die, C.S.G. Auto Truck and Trailer, Baldo's Pizza, Crova GMC Truck, Inc. and Lower Huron Chemical and Supply.

Riopelle has a well-rounded background with many hard-earned accomplishments to her credit. She is basically an "all-American girl" who lives in the same house on Castle Drive where she was raised. She is the only daughter of three children. Her parents are Loretta and Chris Christensen of Romulus and Alfred Riopelle of Belleville. She and her family are members of St. Aloysius parish.

She attended Romulus public elementary schools. In June, she graduated from Aquinas High School in Southgate with a B average. Riopelle is an accomplished dancer and gymnast, skills she has been perfecting since she started at the age of 5. During her career, she has earned five first-place metals in state regional competitions. In addition to her athletic ability, her creativity as an artist has been recognized and several of her oil paintings have been sold.

She was the captain of her high school pom pon team during her junior and senior year and led the squad to first and fourth places in the annual state competitions.

At the present time, she studies at Henry Ford Community College, "four credits short of being full-time," with a career goal of becoming a physical therapist. She works two jobs, as the store activities director at McDonald's and as a clerical auditor at Draw-Tite.

"I pursued this pageant as kind of a hobby. Last year, I entered the North American Pageant System and took the title of Miss Southeastern Debut Model. It was my first experience and it was great," said Riopelle referring to the top award presented in the southeastern Michigan area.

"Pursuing my career is my most important priority. I got into the field of physical therapy because of my own personal experiences. The year I turned 16, I injured my leg in a fall, bumped my head after a dismount and got into a car accident. Thanks to therapy I'm still able to perform most of the gymnast and dance routines," she explained.

Riopelle will compete with 80 other young Michigan women in the final competition at the Novi Hilton this weekend.

Riopelle says she's used to being on stage but confesses, "I'm kind of nervous. Ask me Friday."

Questioned as to whether she would pursue a modeling career, she said it "depends on what kind of feedback I get at the pageant. I like it though. I've made a lot of friends but it's still a hobby."

Romulus business breeds success with basic skills

By BOB DENYS
ANP Staff Writer

When education and business team up as they have in Romulus, the results are not only positive, but productive and profitable, according to the students and employees who have participated in the Romulus Adult Education program.

"Success breeds success. The program is a real confidence builder. Talk about people who are on fire. They even want to do more homework," said Ed Clark, program coordinator. Clark along with Bill Murphy, adult education director; Dr. William Bedell, superintendent of Romulus Schools; and Tom Wyman, UAW training coordinator for Chevrolet-Pontiac-Canada Group engine plant, are pleased with the results of the innovative program.

"The Adult Education program provides customized training assistance and educational programs to business and industry," he said.

He is proud that employees of such local companies as Detroit Diesel Parts Distribution, Kelsey-Hayes, Michigan Oven and the Chevrolet-Pontiac-Canada Group engine plant continue to participate in the adult education program.

"Typical classes have ranged from computer awareness, completion of high school and graduation equivalent diplomas, basic reading and math skills and academic and vocational assessments."

C-P-C has taken the program one step further and contracted with Romulus Community Schools to conduct an academic skills assessment from employee volunteers.

"The C-P-C management felt this project was vital enough to pay each of the 232 employees who participated," Wyman said. "We asked the adult education department to teach basic reading and math classes to employees as a follow-up to the skills assessment."

The program is a real confidence builder. Talk about people who are on fire.

"This project is a good example of how Romulus Community Schools work together with local government, business, industry, labor and community agencies to create a climate where business and industry are encouraged to stay," Clark said.

"The 'soft side' and benefit of the program is the team concept which results. After 20 years of being told what to do, employees need to be convinced this is in their best interest as well as in the interest of the company to participate. Today, employees are encouraged to criticize and suggest as part of a team effort," he said.

"With the introduction of modern computerized equipment in business and industry, thorough knowledge of basic educational skills are necessary. Special technical training helps not just the company but the employee who becomes highly motivated with their added knowledge," Clark said.

Bedell told this story, "During the '60s, a young man could get a diploma at the local high school, a job in a local factory, send his kids to college and live a comfortable middle-class lifestyle. That's not true with the new technology. The rules have changed and many people feel the rug has been pulled out from under them. The answer is simple - to complete their education."

Romulus Adult Education and training staff are available to any business or industry, large or small, within the city limits. Custom-designed staff training, retraining, testing and assessment are offered.

In some cases, the program can assist businesses in applying to the state of Michigan for a training grant which can be used when employees lack basic learning or technical skills to continue learning.

"We believe with the existing work force of 800 employees, we have an excellent opportunity to be inventive and creative with the training and education of our employees. New technology has necessitated new job responsibilities for the existing workforce. We cannot accomplish this solely within the plant and we appreciate the opportunity to work with the Romulus adult education system," noted officials from C-P-C.

Interested people may call 941-0610 for information on the program.

news in brief

NO ACTION WAS taken on a resolution opposing the sale of plastic handguns by members of Romulus City Council contrary to what was reported in the Nov. 5 issue of the Romulus Roman. "I was very disappointed the resolution did not pass," said Mayor Pro Tem Mary Ann Banks. "It's hard enough to control hand guns. The problem is compounded when they are manufactured in plastic and not detectable under an x-ray security system."

CORY ELEMENTARY SCHOOL on Smith Road in Romulus established an honor roll for the thrird-through sixth graders to encourage higher academic achievement, announced school principal Peter Silveri. The following students made the honor roll at the end of this year's first school card marking. From the third grade are: Stefanie Clemons, Nicole Cyburt, Derek Hertenstein, Shyela Stogsdill and Joseph Vail; the fourth graders are: Shareia Carter, Rhonda Clelland, Emily Hickman, Gerald Luster, Lemas Mitchell, Eric Nunlee, Amy Robbins, Michelle Slawinski and Heather Ward; the fifth graders are: Meredith Avery, Daniel Bellottie, Dawn Hoinka, Jason Hudson, Charlotte Kennedy, Kevin Ladach, Keith Parks, Loretta Rozdoske, Kristopher Tarpley, Fae Varesi and Tiffiney Wilson; and the sixth graders are: Sandy Bardroff, Tonya Bishop, Andrea Brown, Pamela Clelland, Robert Graham, Cher Jessick, Debra Kassa, Emily Kesner, Monica Kilburn, Joseph Kusibab, Tanya Logan, Laura Madison, Barbara Markowski, Renea Martell, Sara Palmer, Kenneth Pociask, Leneise Porter, Petrina Sewell, Mara Tolbert and Beverly Vail.

COUNCILMAN NOAH BERGERON was reappointed to the Romulus Housing Commission by Mayor Beverly McNally.

THREE SHOTS WERE fired by a resident at Romulus police officers who responded to a call at a business on Middlebelt about 1 a.m. last Wednesday. The officers were not injured. According to police reports, a man across the street from the business heard the alarm and fired the shots before he realized he was shooting at police.

The man was arrested and charged with two counts of felonious assault and one count of felony with a firearm. "There could have been a couple of dead cops out there," said Lt. Ken Kraus of the Romulus police department.

Taxes

are either in or out-of-formula. Poorer school districts with less tax base are in formula and receive state aid, which Romulus does. This amount supplements taxes diverted through TIFA. Self-supporting school districts are out-of-formula.

Bedell stated that the Romulus School District may soon become an out-of-formula district.

"City officials say they can't develop the town without TIFA. We say there ought to be better way. Our attorney says TIFA is unconstitutional," Bedell said.

Bedell asked members of the city council, "Will you grant members of the school board the right of final approval for TIFA?"

The special meeting between the two groups adjourned. During the regularly scheduled council meeting, McNally received a note from a school board member stating they wished to request another meeting for discussion.

Driverless car gets a jump start

A 1972 Ford Torino circled the parking lot of the Metro Place Mall in Wayne for about 20 minutes Thursday night at about 25 mph. The car hit a U.S. government car parked in the lot several times and was stopped only after a wrecker came to the scene.

But the car had no driver. Wayne police report that a Wayne man shopping in the mall could not start his car when he returned to it at about 10:30 that night. Hopeful that the car would start once jumper cables were applied to the car battery, the local resident was rather surprised when the car started heading in reverse circles around the parking lot.

Police and fire department officials barricaded the area from the uncontrollable car, watching the vehicle hit a car owned by the U.S. Army recruiting office several times.

A wrecker was called to the scene and was used to stop the vehicle after about 20 minutes. About $300 in damage was reported on the wrecker and extensive damage was done to the Torino, police said.

However, the man and his Torino were allowed to drive away from the scene after the incident without being charged.

dan's dogs

Do you know the astrological sign of your dog? Don't laugh, but it could be a possibility your dog falls into a specific category, by astrological sign, regarding his personality. Let's have some fun with this.

Aquarius – Cool, confident, gentle. Needs and gives love sparingly, yet feels deeply. Smart, quick learner.

Aries – This dog would be a leader, full of adventure and have a spirit confident and strong. Might show off a bit, too!

Taurus – A slower moving, full-bodied dog (for his breed), loyal and hard working. A stubborn streak is not uncommon.

Gemini – Energy personified. Quick, agile, slender, always moving, eyes darting here and there. Has to be a part of everything going on. Would be a comfort if he would calm down.

Cancer – Loves his home. If a female, a great mother to her puppies. A quiet, soulful dog, steady and calm. Moodiness can become a worry.

Leo – The king and queen of his or her breed. Never lacks confidence. Totally self-assured. Slower moving than most. Sees no reason to change perfection by scurrying around. An egotist.

Virgo – This dog eats and drinks neatly. Careful and self-assured, eyes watch everything and miss nothing. This one is calm when others around are not. Such confidence.

Libra – Enjoys the comforts of his surroundings. Must have the best bone – no substitutes please. Willing to work if appreciated. A beautiful work of art as far as conformation goes.

Scorpio – Don't cross this one. Moody, sensitive. Piercing eyes. No in-between moods – either happy or depressed. Tends to get even.

Sagittarius – Lively, cheerful inquisitive. Many times the leader of the group. Lots of self-confidence but uses it when convenient.

Capricorn – Steadfast, loyal, true-blue. The older the dog, the younger he acts. Matures before his time. A long-working yet stubborn pet – but forever loyal.

Pisces – Don't yell, don't be unfair. This one melts hearts with one glance of the eyes. Ever so sensitive and moody. The childlike quality flitting in and out of his personality grabs the heartstrings.

making the grade

Several students at the Romulus Senior High School received academic accolades recently by being named to the honor roll for the first marking period of the 1986-87 school year.

At the school, two honor rolls exist. One, named the principal's honor roll, is awarded to those students who obtain a 3.5-4.0 grade point average. The other – the regular honor – is given to students who maintain a 3.0-3.49 grade point average. On the list are:

Santa comes to town

Santa Claus officially opened the holiday season on Saturday morning when he arrived at Westland Center with a group of special guests.

The John Glenn High School Band, directed by Norman Logan, led the parade that wound through the mall courts. Following the band were Teddy Ruxpin, the talking bear, Tammy Leeann Avers, 1986 Miss Westland, and the mayor of Westland, Charles Griffin.

Roberta Harris, Angie Tanas and Pam Hagan distributed goodies to the throngs of children lining the mall walks and Santa, himself, strolled along at the end of the parade shaking hands and talking to the youngsters.

The Westland Christmas Trio, Kathy Leslie, Christie Lesinski and Julie DeWard, sang carols with the children assembled around the stage in the West Court.

Santa now takes up residence in the Enchanted Forest until Dec. 24 when he will take his annual journey to visit boys and girls with his sleigh full of toys.

Turkey time

Chefs are saying thanks to Thanksgiving hotline

By SHERRY WOODARD
ANP Staff Writer

It's that time of year again. Time for family and friends to gather around the table and share a homespun feast of turkey with all the trimmings, hearty, wholesome vegetables, breads that melt in your mouth and, of course, pumpkin pie.

Is there a more pleasant, heartwarming image than loved ones gathered for the traditional Thanksgiving feast? But, believe it or not, this image strikes fear in the hearts of some. Fear born out of ignorance, from which fear is bound to spring.

This fear is no ordinary thing, either. The fear in question is . . . "Turkey trauma."

That's right. Turkey trauma.

Unofficially defined as the fear of cooking a Thanksgiving turkey, this affliction primarily hits women since they are usually the gender brave enough to tackle the task of turning out a Turkey Day feast.

"Thank you for calling the Butterball Turkey Hotline," a recording says when you dial the Butterball number. The same pleasant relaxed voice then assures you that someone will be with you shortly.

Asked if many people are afraid to cook a turkey, the home economist who answered the phone responded, "Yes. And they needn't be. It's easier to fix a turkey than a steak."

• If you opt for the frozen turkey, thaw the bird in your refrigerator, placing it in a pan so that meat juices will not spill out. A turkey, weighing nine pounds will require a day to thaw.

• Once the bird is thawed, remove the giblets which will be stuffed inside. These can be thrown away or simmered for approximately two hours and used for a gravy.

• Rinse the turkey and dry it with paper towels. Oil it with any vegetable oil; place it in a pan deep enough to hold the juices.

• Now, you are ready to put the bird in the oven at 325 degrees.

"You don't have to baste it. You don't have to cover it," the home economist assured.

Toward the end of the cooking time, place a tin foil "tent" over the top of the turkey. The foil should be "about the size of a piece of typing paper," she said.

Leftovers?
Turn them into quiche

By RAY DAY
ANP News Editor

Tired of turning those turkey leftovers into cream turkey on toast, turkey salad, turkey hash, turkey sandwiches (hot and cold) or burying bones-and-all in the back yard? Why not opt for a few new leftover alternatives this year?

Admittedly, "turkey-asparagus quiche" doesn't fit the bill as the All-American turkey leftover recipe. However, the Michigan Asparagus Advisory Board points out that a combination of the low calorie, low sodium and high vitamin quiche can be good for the body and tantalizing to the taste buds.

And, as a last reminder, wise restaurant-goers warn, "Don't order quiche from any restaurant which pronounces it 'q-u-i-c-k-y.'" Happy leftovers . . .

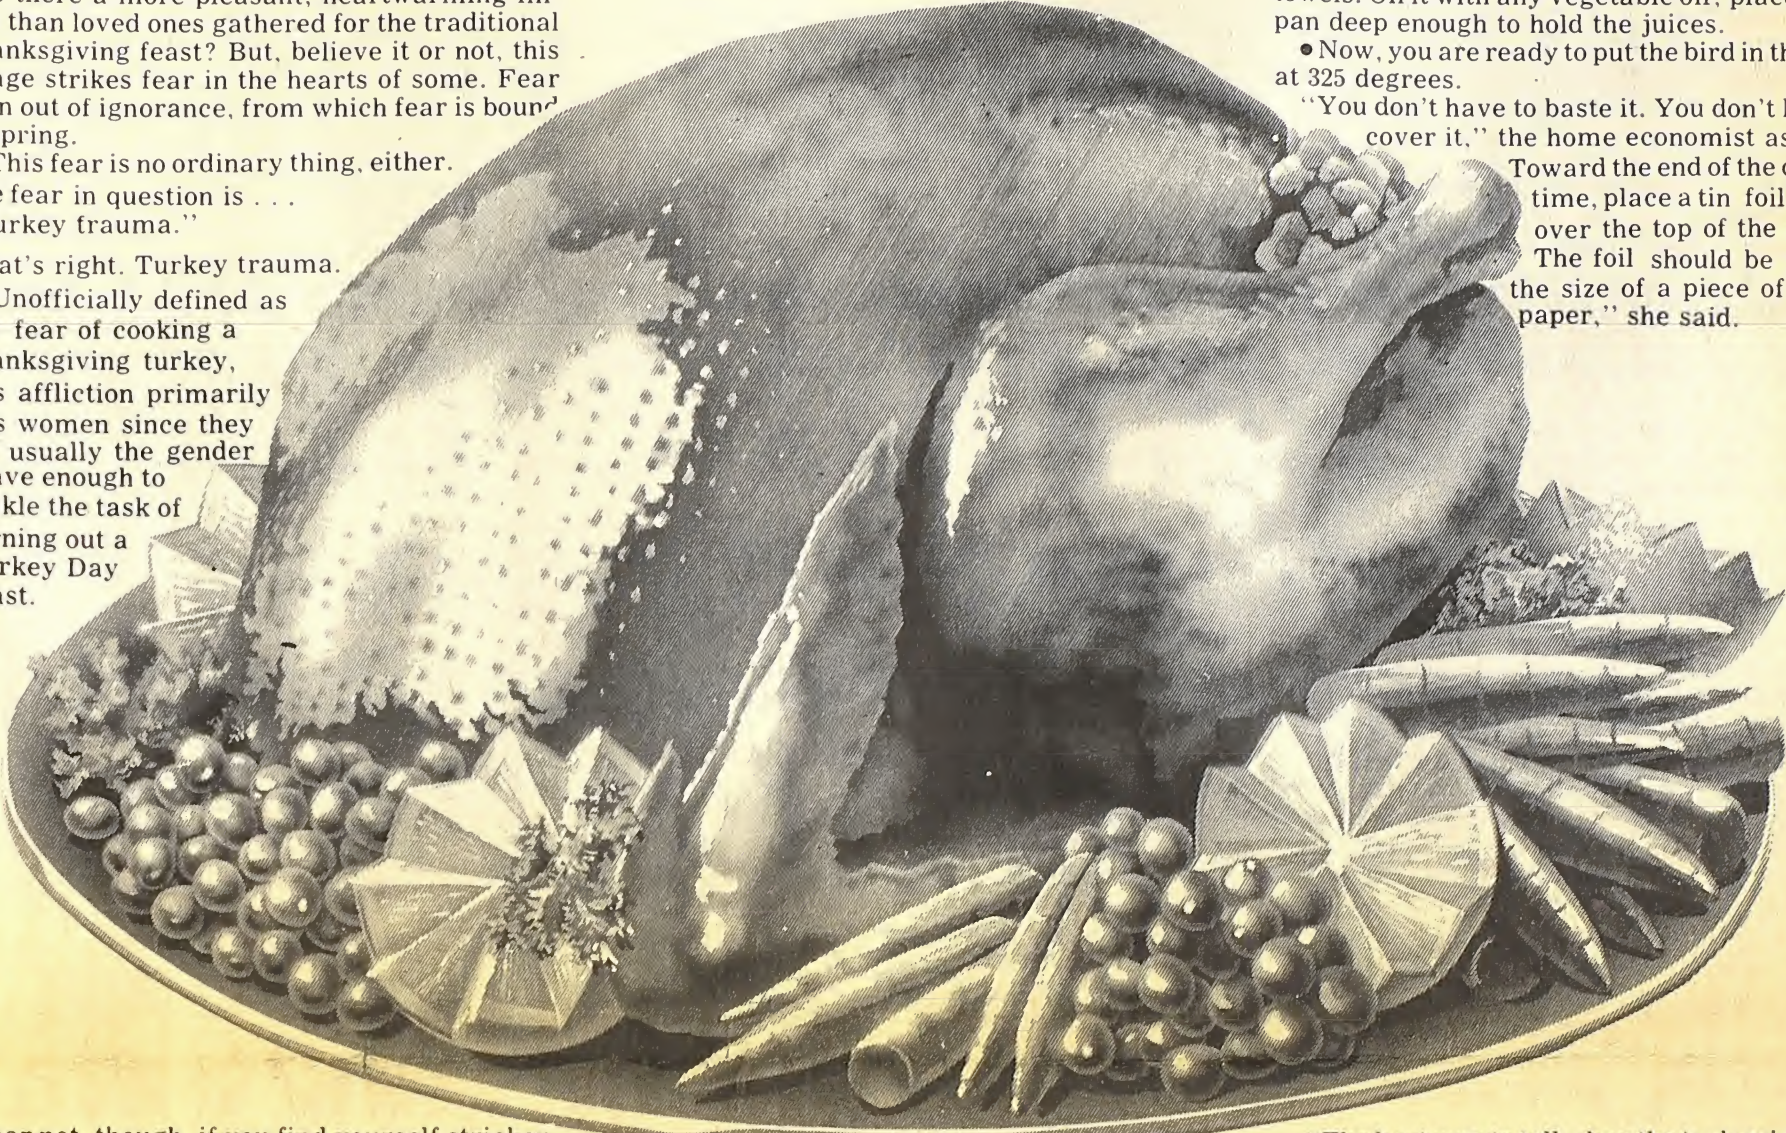

TURKEY-ASPARAGUS QUICHE

- 1 cup diced, cooked turkey
- 3 green onions, sliced
- 1 unbaked 9-inch pastry shell
- 1 10-ounce package frozen asparagus spears, thawed
- 1 cup grated Swiss cheese
- 2 tbs. grated parmesan cheese
- 3 eggs
- 1-3/4 cup half-and-half or whole milk
- dash nutmeg
- dash pepper

Sprinkle turkey and onions in bottom of pastry shell. Set aside six whole asparagus spears. Cut remaining spears into 1/2-inch pieces and place in pastry shell. Sprinkle cheese over asparagus.

In mixing bowl, beat eggs until well mixed. Add half-and-half and seasoning, mixing until combined. Pour over mixture in pastry shell. Bake in 425-degree oven for 15 minutes. Remove from oven and arrange asparagus spears to form spokes. Reduce oven heat to 300 degrees and bake 40 minutes longer or until knife inserted in center comes out clean.

Cool 10 minutes before serving. Makes six servings.

Fear not, though, if you find yourself stricken with the ailment this Thanksgiving because help in the form of the Turkey Hotline is just 11 telephone digits away.

Butterball is sponsoring the hotline, as it has for about six years now. The United States Department of Agriculture also has a poultry hotline which you can call to receive cooking tips. The USDA Hotline number is 1-800-535-4555.

The Butterball hotline number is 1-800-323-4848. Scores of trained home economists are awaiting calls from people all over the country who do not know the first thing to do with a turkey.

She then proceeded to explain in a calm, patient voice the ins-and-outs of cooking a turkey. Questions, no matter how mundane, were answered in terms simple enough for even the kitchen novice to understand.

Here's all you do:

• Purchase either a frozen or fresh turkey. The home economist recommended a frozen bird because that variety is usually put on ice no more than 48 hours after slaughter.

"You never know how long the grocer's had a fresh bird," she warned. "Also you will be paying a premium for the fresh bird."

"The best way to tell when the turkey is done is to use a meat thermometer," she advised. Stick the instrument in the thigh of the bird until it touches bone. When the thermometer reads 180-185 degrees, your turkey is ready.

This is true no matter what size the bird is.

As a rule of thumb, a turkey weighing between four and seven pounds will require two and one-half hours of cooking time.

If you still need help along the way, the Turkey Hotline is open until 6 p.m. The USDA Hotline is open until 4 p.m. Turkey experts are also taking calls tomorrow until the same times.

Holiday recipes highlight the season

GARBANZOS ALINADOS

- 1 hard cooked egg yolk
- 1/4 cup olive oil
- 3 tablespoons wine vinegar
- 1 can garbanzos, drained
- 1 garlic clove, minced
- 2 tablespoons parsley, chop
- 2 tablespoons onion, chop
- 1 tablespoon capers, drained

Chop egg yolk in bowl. Add remaining ingredients. Cover and refrigerate overnight.

CURRIED TUNA CUKES

- 1 can tuna, drained
 - 1/2 cup coconut
 - 1/2 cup sour cream
 - 4 green onions, chop
 - 1 teaspoon curry
 - dash salt/pepper
- Combine all ingredients and mix well. Place a heaping teaspoon on a thin slice of cucumber. Garnish w/paprika.

MARINATED SHRIMPS

- 1/2 clove garlic
 - 1 teaspoon salt
 - 1/2 cup vinegar
 - 1/4 cup salad oil
 - 4 drops tabasco
 - 4 chopped olives
 - 3 tablespoons parsley, chop
 - 2 tablespoons dill pickle
 - 2 pounds jumbo shrimp, cooked
- Mash garlic and salt. Add all ingredients and pice in a glass bowl, overed. Chill at least 24 hours. Serve skewered.

SUGARED WALNUTS

- 2 1/2 cups walnuts
- 1 cup sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1/2 teaspoon salt

- 1 1/2 teaspoon vanilla
- Heat walnuts in a warm oven for 5 minutes: Butter sides of a heavy saucepan. Combine sugar, water and cinnamon and salt. Stir till sugar dissolves and mix boils, then cook, without stirring to soft ball stage (236 degrees). Remove from heat. Beat by hand for 1 minute, then stir in vanilla and warm nuts. Stir gently till nuts are coated. Separate at once. Great with cheese and fruit!

PARTY PUFFS

- 1 envelope onion soup mix

- 1 stick butter, melted
- 1 package ice box biscuits

Place butter and soup mix in a saucepan over low heat. Cut biscuits into quarters. Toss in butter/sauce. Place on cookie sheet. Bake 425 for 5 min.

Remember cold peace?

As the holidays approach, we tend to reminisce about the joys, fun and happiness of our past years. For some reason, those memories – often overlooked as insignificant at the time they happened – take on more importance as we look back upon them as fond memories.

Yes, even the family Christmas parties that I considered to be boring and uneventful in my childhood now hold a special charm as I recall the predictable events that made up the annual celebration. Uncle Al dressed up as Santa, Uncle Fred played the saxophone and Aunt Inez provided vocal accompaniment. We all sang carols, ate fruitcake and cookies, exchanged gifts and went home promising to see each other more often in the coming year. Of course, we didn't, but Christmas meant a once-a-year gathering of the clan and an updating on what transpired during the past 12 months. Now we are scattered around, each with our own set of family and friends and many of us further divided by divorce and subsequent re-marriage. With our new extended families, a simple Christmas party at this time would require the renting of Cobo Hall.

Another tradition I miss – but, probably would not really want to revive – was our annual visit to view the Christmas trees and decorations of our friends and neighbors. It was another mandatory social obligation that did not take on much importance to me at the time, but looking back seems rather delightful. Our friends and relatives visited us, oohed and ahed over our tree and sampled some of Mom's homebaked Christmas treats. The grown-ups sampled some of the special beverages Dad reserved for the holidays. When our neighbor, Sam, made his obligatory visit during the Christmas season, Dad wisely poured a couple of inches of holiday beverage in an empty pint bottle knowing that Sam would "drink any given amount." Of course, we responded in kind with the same oohs and ahhs over the Christmas decorations of our friends and relatives and we also sampled the home-baked treats and holiday beverages – Vernor's ginger ale for the youngsters and beverages poured from beautifully decorated decanters for the adults.

Prior to the holidays, we spent an evening shopping for our tree. The entire family had to make the trek from lot to lot before Dad would make his final selection of a "perfect tree." Like everyone else, our tree had a bald spot somewhere in the middle which we attempted to hide with extra decorations. When we made our tree tour, one of the main things we looked for was the bald spot on the trees of our friends and family.

The putting up and the taking down of the tree were major events, each taking an entire joan dyer speaking evening so that the job would be done to perfection. Although I wasn't an active part of the baking process, that task also took many days and painstaking work to complete.

Still, if I had to choose the one holiday memory that has had the most impact on me, it would have to be a Christmas Eve that I spent apart from my family. In 1969 when I was a "stringer," a part-time reporter, for a weekly newspaper my attention was attracted by a news release announcing a peace vigil in downtown Wyandotte. Peace, at that time, was not popular. Our country was highly involved in the Vietnam War and the hawks greatly outnumbered the doves, especially in our conservative suburb.

The vigil had been planned by two local ministers who had managed to find another 10 like-minded individuals to join them at the site of a memorial dedicated to wounded veterans of past wars. It was to be a peaceful display of anti-war feelings consisting of prayers, a silent march and meditation.

On Christmas Eve, the dozen vigil keepers were joined by a young newspaper proofreader and I. We kept the silent vigil as cars circled around the block shouting out, "communists," "faggots," and worse. The police sent out a patrol car to guard us from an expected attack by right-wingers which fortunately never came.

Our worst problem that night was with the cold – a biting wind blew across the Detroit River and chilled us to the bone. We turned up our coat collars, thrust our gloved hands deeper into our pockets and tried to keep our backs to the wind. Most of our group were young people, but one member of our party, a doctor, was in his 60s. His lips were blue and his face was red from the cold. Like the rest of us, when he tried to speak he could barely move his mouth. Nevertheless, he was determined to keep his vigil as long as any of us remained at the monument site.

Someone driving by the corner recognized the doctor and called out to him, "Doctor, come in our car and get warm."

He shook his head and said, "come out with us and get cold."

There are people who support peace causes today, but few who would want to get out in the cold. Along with missing some of the traditional holiday scenes of the past, I think I miss the spirit of that era that prompted us to get out in the cold to stand up for something in which we believed. Peace.

Personal integrity

One of the many personal qualities I have come to admire in individuals is integrity. Perhaps I admire it even more because I don't see enough of it.

What were talking about here is the code of honor, if you will, one adheres to, because he believes in the values his ethics reflect. Individuals with a true sense of personal values maintain the honor and integrity of their beliefs because they are convinced that they can make a difference.

If we see ourselves as a mere grain of sand on the beach of life, then how can it make a difference what we do? Why would it matter if we fail to stand fast while so many others shirk their duty, obligation and responsibility.

Let's say you could save the world from certain destruction by simply placing an anonymous telephone call to 911 and passing along some simple message that would almost certainly avert Armageddon.

If, on the other extreme, someone suggested that if you hurled yourself off an overpass into freeway traffic to certain death then perhaps you would teach people to drive more slowly, well, you surely would think them insane.

In between these two simplistic extremes we have a universe of grey called "real life experiences".

From our parents, teachers, ministers, rabbis or priests, we develop our standards, values, and mores. Ultimately these values determine with some degree of accuracy what we will do given a certain set of circumstances.

We live in an age of ever increasing complexity. If asked a question 10 years ago about "what would you do if..." and asked the same question today, the answers most probably would be different.

As the values of society change, often our own values are influenced and altered. We may not be in sync with the prevalent values in society at any given time, but if we could take a snap-shot of our values and beliefs from the past and compare them to our present standards, they would undoubtedly be modified.

Now as to this matter of personal integrity. We all are faced with little choices every day, and few of our decisions will have a dramatic impact on the outcome of our life, in and of themselves.

Just as our lives tend to change course, for better or worse, one day at a time, so do our values. What is relevant here is the adherence to that code to which we subscribe. And further, what price we are willing to pay to guard and defend that which we say we believe.

President Gerald Ford put an early end to his Presidential election prospects by pardoning Richard Nixon. Ford concluded that the country could not endure an impeachment trial of its president. In his mind, his own political career became a lesser priority than the greater interests of America.

President Reagan tells us that he has nothing to apologize for in the shipping of arms to Iran to be used in the war with Iraq. He claims there is no direct path to the release of two American hostages. Hmm. Grey area at best.

Actor Robert Strauss portrayed on television last week, a judge caught between obeying the law and his own code, or caving in to public and political pressure. He had to choose between his personal opinion about what should be done, and his professional knowledge of what must be done.

He was forced to choose between sentencing a known child killer and rapist or setting the murderer free because the law he swore to uphold, when he took the oath of office, had been violated.

I think I would sooner suffer the jeers, insults, and ridicule of those who do not understand or choose not to discover the facts

Reporter lauded for professionalism

To The Editor:

This is to let you and staff writer, Bob Denys, know how pleased I am with the article he wrote about my mother, Mrs. Cecelia Renke. The article appeared in the Wednesday, Nov. 5, 1986, edition of The Romulus Roman.

My mother lived a long and active life and Mr. Denys did an excellent job in reporting it.

My family received many complimentary comments about the article from the community.

Also, my father, Mr. Renke, would like "that young fellow to know he did a good job."

Why can't they rest in peace?

Local businessman enjoys his 'hobby'

By BOB DENYS
ANP Staff Writer

"Everybody likes to play," is the philosophy 42-year-old Gary Wobbe of Canton follows to operate his three local hobby centers.

As a young boy growing up in Wayne, Wobbe frequently visited the hobby store on Michigan Avenue to add another car or building to his miniature railroad collection. Joe Hass had owned the business for some 30 years and Wobbe purchased it from him eight months ago.

Business proved so much better than expected that five months later, he opened another location in Lincoln Park. When that didn't satisfy the local demand for hobby products, Wobbe opened a third location and now the headquarters, on Main Street in Belleville.

"Business has been good," he said modestly. "Everybody tells me it's going to get better."

ASSOCIATED NEWSPAPERS: What made you decide to get into the hobby business?

focus on people

WOBBE: I spent 27 years in the tire business. I've sold them, managed stores and for the past nine years owned the Arrow Tire Company on Ford Road in Garden City. We are in the process of closing that store right now. The inventory has been sold and in a couple of weeks, we will close permanently.

When we bought the hobby store, we thought it would be more of an income supplement. We've done way more volume than expected. Most people in the hobby business view the business as a hobby. Sure, I've played with this stuff all my life, but this hobby business is going to be different and it's going to be better.

ANP: Do you have a partner in this endeavor?

WOBBE: My wife, Pamela. It is interesting how we met. Three years ago, I spent 30 days recovering from a snowmobile accident. Pamela was a registered nurse. The doctor told me I needed good care, so I brought home the nurse.

She enjoys the hobbies better than tires, and she still works in the hospital part-time. She is responsible for the introduction of needlecraft into the store. We both work a lot of hours, often up to 18 hours a day.

ANP: What are the some of the most popular hobbies today?

WOBBE: Remote control dune buggies! They're hot! Remote control planes and boats have been popular for years, but you need an open area or water for them. You can operate the dune buggy anywhere. Sales have been strong for about two years. The Thanksgiving holiday has not even begun and I don't think you can find many dune buggies for sale.

They are so popular that we have installed an indoor dirt track inside two of our stores. They are fun. They jump, flip, roll over. And kids don't have all the fun. Many adults are buying them.

Other popular items are plastic models of cars, planes or trains. Train sets seem to be in great demand this season. And as I said before, needlecraft continues to dominate a portion of our sales.

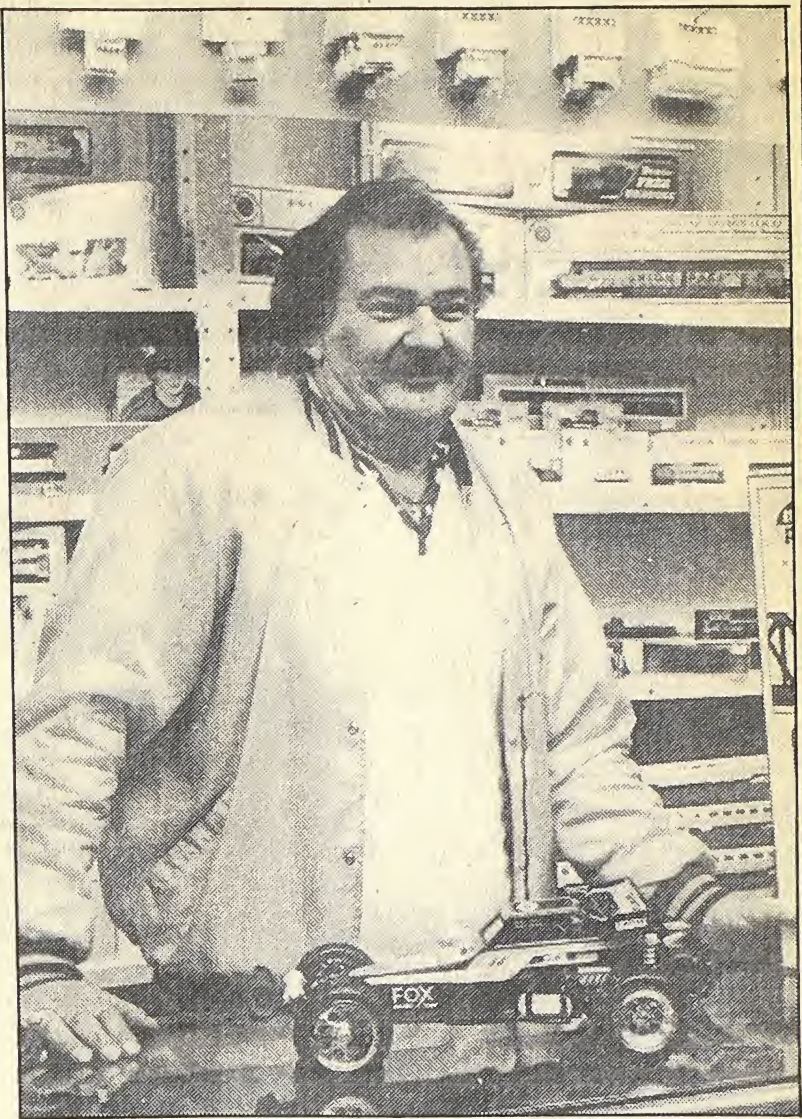

ANP: How do you know what to buy and what is popular or what is going to be popular?

WOBBE: We talk with different people and companies. Some salesman are very helpful. Others, we just listen to. I learned it's important to build up a selection and variety of merchandise. Then you can play with it to see what sells. More merchandise helps lower prices.

Some products, like art supplies we had to get out of. The turn over was not good and the profit wasn't there. Many people told us they were disappointed with that decision.

ANP: Who buys most of the hobbies and crafts?

WOBBE: It varies and depends on the hobby. Retired men in their 60s love those remote control planes.

A recently-signed law makes it clear that seriously disabled veterans in Michigan have the same special parking rights as other handicapped persons and gives them a way to prove they have impaired mobility.

In 1985, the Legislature recognized and honored disabled veterans by passing a law allowing them to buy special vehicle license plates for just $5.

The plates carry the letters "DV", followed by the identification numbers. Beneath them are the words "disabled veteran".

Instead of continuing to buy license plates for handicapped persons, many veterans bought the low-cost disabled veteran plates. They assumed that the disabled veteran plates would entitle them to park in the handicapped parking spaces.

It did not work that way.

There were complaints from drivers with the disabled veteran plates that when they parked in the handicapped spots they were either ticketed or warned that their plates did not entitle them to the special parking privileges. They learned that in order to legally use the spots they had to get a handicapped window card for their vehicle.

Under the new law, anyone with a disabled veteran license plate now has the same parking privileges as persons with handicapped plates, provided the veteran obtains a handicapped tab from the secretary of state. The sticker tabs are attached to the license plate.

The reason for the tab is that not all disabled veterans have serious problems in getting around. The Michigan Office of Handicapper Concerns figures that less than one of three of the 4,000 disabled veterans in Michigan have impaired mobility, which means that many cannot be classified as seriously physically handicapped to the point where they need the special parking slots.

Thus, the new law makes sure that only those disabled veterans with impaired mobility be allowed to use the parking places for handicapped persons.

The legislation was supported by the Michigan Chapter of the Paralyzed Veterans of America, the Michigan Veterans Trust Fund, the Michigan Department of State and the Michigan Department of Transportation.

rather than wrestle with the internal damnation of selling out my soul.

I guess we have to stay flexible in our thinking, and be willing to accept the thoughts and opinions of others. Yet there comes a time in each of our lives when we must stand fast in defense of our own personal beliefs.

What I suggest here is that we remain true to ourselves, and uphold the ethics and standards to which we profess to subscribe. There is no greater treason than the betrayal of your own personal ethics and integrity.

See you next week,....I promise.

Mayflower descendant traces tree

By RAY DAY
ANP News Editor

Liz Zombeck of Belleville has never been to Plymouth, Mass. — first home to the Pilgrims. However, the genealogical enthusiast does have family roots which place her in the group of Americans whose ancestors climbed aboard the Mayflower in search of the new land.

Zombeck is one of the 22,000 people in the U.S. who have successfully traced their family line back to one or more of the original passengers on the Mayflower which landed in Plymouth in December 1620. Although she still searches for just the right documents which will allow her to become a member of the nationwide General Society of Mayflower Descendants society, Zombeck is confident that there is some merit to the family rumor which says she is a granddaughter of William Bradford, one passenger on the Mayflower and governor of the first colony set up by the Pilgrims.

"My maiden name is Bradford, and my grandmother said that we have relatives that came over on the Mayflower," Zombeck said of her first clues that she was a descendant of the Pilgrims. "I've been into genealogy on and off for the last 17 years. The Bradford line is one I have not worked on yet."

A Mormon, Zombeck's interest in genealogy arises both from her religious beliefs and curiosity. She already has successfully traced her family roots to a grandfather that served in the Civil War and has proven that she is a fourth cousin of Norm Cash.

Nevertheless, Zombecks' current task is to obtain the documentation — birth certificates, death notices, marriage licenses, etc. — which will enable her to become a documented descendant of Bradford, or any other Mayflower traveler. Such a chore should not be too difficult, she admitted, by it is one which requires large amounts of time in research.

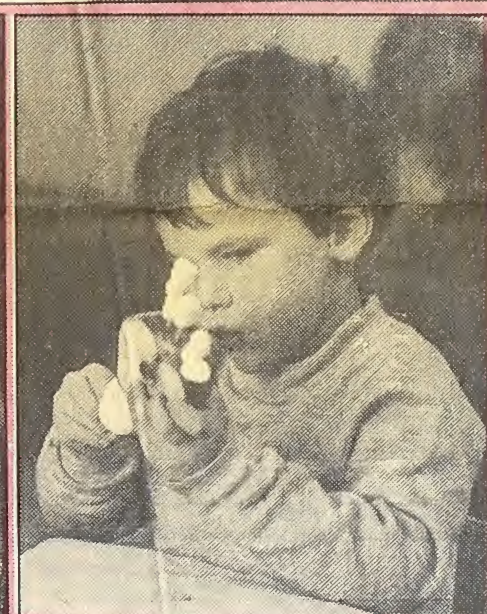

"William Bradford had 22 children and was married four times. So, there are a lot of people in this country who are a descendant to him," explained Zombeck.

Of the 104 men, women and children who boarded the wooden Mayflower vessel and founded the first American colony at Plymouth, Mass., more than half died the first winter, and 23 are known to have had children," said a spokesperson for the Mayflower society. Most popular among those Pilgrims who people today claim to be linked to are Bradford, William Brewster, Miles Standish and John Alden. Least popular, according to the spokesperson, is John Billington, a hunter who was tried and hanged for murdering a man he believed was tampering with his hunting traps.

According to the society, applications for membership increase in waves in mid-November. While Zombeck is certain that her own application won't be one of those to hit the application desk at the society this year, she said that next year is not out of the question.

Local students turn to thanks

The second-grade students at Wick School in Romulus have lots to be thankful for these days, and they decked out in pilgrim and Indian gear this morning to show it.

Students from the classes taught by Kathy Motyka, Alderene Solomon and Nancy Talento participated in an in-school recitation and sing-along showing their thankfulness for the season while their parents watched on.

But not all students plan to spend their Thanksgiving holiday in the same way. To one student, Thanksgiving is a time of sharing "where everyone has fun and the family gathers all around."

Melissa Watson is looking forward to filling up on the corn and radishes she hopes her meal will promise, and Tamekia Brown will enjoy some cranberries and apple pie. And for those who aren't really "in" to apple or pumpkin pie, one student offered a viable solution.

"We're going to have doughnuts," said a gleaming Michael Porenta.

At another Thanksgiving event for the children, youngsters from the YMCA of Wayne-Westland gathered last Wednesday for a craft session and apple-turkey day. While enjoying making puppets and other Thanksgiving creations out of cardboard and paper, the students turned ordinary apples into holiday turkeys.

All in all, most of the children seem to have obtained a sincere appreciation and understanding of the Thanksgiving holiday having studied the topic for several weeks. Being thankful carried a number of different definitions for several youngsters, but two second-graders seemed to put it precisely on target.

"You should be thankful because if you don't, then they won't be thankful to you. And cause everyone will be nice to you if you do," explained Ebony Sandusky.

'Happy holidays' bring unhappy blues

By JOAN MARY DYER
ANP Staff Writer

Traditional Christmas colors may be red and green, but for some people the holidays are tinged with "blues."

"Many people are depressed around the holidays," according to psychotherapist Gene Hadwiger of Woodcreek Counseling Center in Farmington Hills. "Because the holidays are supposed to be happy days, the individual who is depressed feels even worse in contrast to those around him."

People may be depressed because they are alone — either because of a divorce, the end of a relationship or the death of someone close to them, according to Hadwiger. Even if the death or end of the relationship came earlier in the year, the sadness tends to surface again during the holidays when people traditionally spend more time with their loved ones.

"At Thanksgiving we may be reminded of the loss of our loved one when we see an empty place at the table or remember something the person who is missing did on previous holidays," Hadwiger said.

The psychotherapist suggested that the depressed person talk to someone about their feelings. This could be a good friend or a professional counselor, he said. The individual who is dealing with the death of a loved one should find someone who specializes in grief counseling.

Hadwiger recommended that lonely and depressed people look for ways to be with people during the holidays. "People are usually more friendly during the holidays. If the depressed person can just get out and meet people, rather than closing himself off, that can be helpful."

"Instead of feeling depressed about spending the holiday alone, why not invite someone else who is alone to spend the day with you?" Hadwiger suggested. "Also, look for places to go and things to do during the holidays."

Hadwiger noted that there are numerous low-cost events that are scheduled during the holidays including sing-alongs, special concerts — sponsored by churches, schools and local musical groups — plus craft shows, boutiques and antique shows. He recommended that individuals check through their local newspaper to find activities in which they may participate.

"Sometimes just a walk though the mall to look at the decorations can provide a pleasant afternoon," he said.

Hadwiger also recommended that individuals who feel blue can brighten their outlook by helping others through volunteer activities. He suggested that people could make cookies or decorations for shut-ins or donate some time to visiting nursing home residents. Helping others, he said, can help the depressed person to get over his feelings of depression.

Although the holidays may bring back some sad memories, they also prompt happy memories of past years, Hadwiger said. Focus on the happy times and the good memories of the Thanksgivings and Christmases of the past years, he suggested.

"Don't pass up the opportunity to decorate and keep up the traditions of the past. You may not feel like celebrating, but you can enjoy the holidays — maybe not in the same way — but you can enjoy them."

"Above all, find ways to be good to yourself. Don't get so caught up with doing things during the holidays, that you forget your own needs. If you're good to yourself, it will make you feel better," Hadwiger said.

"For example, if you enjoy music, attend a concert. If you like art, go to an exhibit," he concluded. "Remember to do things that are important to you."

RESIGNATION LETTER WRITTEN FROM THE HEART!!

MP could not continue to work in her present position. The stress was causing many health problems. She had been in and out of the hospital on numerous occasions. No matter how hard she worked, she wasn't getting the recognition from her employer that she felt she deserved. The following letter helped her resign with dignity.

Sincerely, MP

DEAR COMPANY:

It is with a great deal of hesitation, unwillingness, and even sadness and disappointment, that I tender my resignation from employment with your company.

For the past 16+ years, I have been a conscientious employee and have attempted to perform a job to the very best of my ability. I have consistently exhibited loyalty and care and concern for both the company and its customers.

On a regular basis, I have watched others promoted while my status remained unchanged. In many instances, I have personally trained individuals who were recognized by upgrades in job description and/or have, in fact, been chosen to supervise me.

As a result of the pressure of trying to move forward, while simultaneously being kicked backward, I developed very serious emotional problems as well as an ulcer.

Having been on a leave of absence since Feb. 3, 1986, I returned to work (despite my physician's recommendation that I apply for a permanent disability) as I sincerely wished to overcome my difficulty and not become a mental and physical cripple. More than anything else in my life, I wanted to make a success of this second try. It has, however, become exceedingly clear to me that I cannot do this along, and you seem unwilling to see the stress under which I am working and, therefore, correct it.

I simply cannot continue to subject myself to further health problems directly related to the conditions of my employment.

With regret, MP

RESOLUTION:

MP has not used this letter yet as she is still trying to resolve her problem with her employer and effect change. It is, however, in her back pocket and ready for delivery at a moment's notice.

just married

Besson - Martilotta

Mrs. Suzy Martilotta

Suzy Francine Besson of Dearborn and Robert J. Martilotta of Detroit were united in marriage Sept. 12 at the Sacred Heart Catholic Church in Dearborn. The Rev. James Kenneally officiated in the double-ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Besson of Potter Drive, Belleville. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Martilotta of Mt. Clemens.

The bridal gown was made of white taffeta with pearl and lace long sleeves and yoke, a basque "v" waist bodice and a gathered hemline. Her headpiece was cathedral length with a silk flower wreath and pearl, embroidered tulle flowers.

Sylvia Redden of Longview, Texas, served as the matron of honor for the event, wearing a red floor-length dress with puffed sleeves and a "v"-shaped waist with flowers matching her bouquet in her hair.

Bridesmaids for the ceremony included Janulis Martilotta, of Grand Rapids, Karen Thompson-Hooks and Suzanne Gruden.

Their dresses were the same as the one worn by the matron of honor with no flowers in their hair.

Louis P. Martilotta of Grand Rapids served as best man. Ushers included Gary Walby of

Cobb - Smalls

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Smalls

Janelle Montresa Cobb and Ronald Jay Smalls exchanged marriage vows in a double-ring ceremony Oct. 18 at St. Clements Episcopal Church in Inkster. The Rev. Robert Bickley officiated in the service.

The church was decorated with peach and pearl blended with hues of autumn flowers. Peach pew bows centered with silk flowers were featured along with an altar piece of candles, floral arrangements and green plants.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Cobb of Westland, the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. David Smalls of Pittsburgh.

Organ music for the ceremony was provided by Lucy Mitchell. Cousins, Lanaza and Sylvia Rose Cobb, and a friend of the bride, Janice Avery, also sang love songs during the service.

The bridal dress was a formal Victorian gown of ivory and satin, accented with appliqued roses and clusters of seed pearls and sequins. The gown featured puffed sleeves, Victorian neckline, sheer yoke and a fitted bodice that was gently gathered onto a bouffant skirt with a cathedral train.

Her headpiece featured a cluster of pearls, sequins and Austrian crystals with a v-shaped band of rhinestones dangling from her forehead. A triple-tiered veil with a coudele poud perfected the outfit.

Her bouquet was a cascade of white roses, pom poms and carnations mixed with greenery.

Maid of honor was Pamela Smith of Ft. Worth, Texas.

Bridesmaids for the event were Lori Coker of Clarksville, Tenn., Robin Brinston of Atlanta, Sharon Smalls of Pittsburgh, Crystal Byrdlong of Chicago and Jacqueline Jenkins of Inkster.

Best man for the ceremony was the groom's brother, Brandon Smalls of Little Rock, Calif. Ushers included Ronald Rouchon of Chicago, Edward White of Dallas, Roger Smalls of Pittsburgh, Leslie Cobb and Kendall Cobb of Westland.

A reception at the Karas House of Redford followed the ceremony and was attended by about 370 guests. A five-tiered wedding cake with five shades of frosting and decorated with pearls was featured.

Both the bride and groom are graduates of Tuskegee University in Alabama. The groom is employed as a mechanical engineer by the Alcoa Company in Evansville, Ind., and the bride, a registered nurse, worked at the VA Medical Center in Allen Park.

After a short honeymoon, the couple made their new home in Evansville, Ind.

Bowlers take to good cause

Local bowlers won't be bowling for dollars when their take to the lanes soon, but they will be doing so to aid the local chapter of the Easter Seals.

The Inkster-based chapter reported recently plans of sponsoring a four-month raffle promotion at participating Wayne County bowling centers. Grand prize drawing, which will feature a "Nassau Dream Vacation for Two," will be staged on Valentine's Day.

Weekly raffles will also be conducted. For more information, pick up contest entry blanks and rules at participating bowling centers.

Catalog shopping increases with lifestyles

By JUDY JOHNSON
ANP Staff Writer

It's the holiday shopping season, but most experienced shoppers know it is the time to have finished their purchasing.

Local mall merchants from Westland to Fairlane are expecting shoppers to turn out in record numbers, and if you are one of the many who wait until the last minute to do your holiday shopping, you have undoubtedly experienced the overwhelming crowds at the local malls.

There is, however, an alternative to mall-itis. More and more shoppers are taking to the phones. "They love the convenience of ordering over the phone in the comfort of their own homes," said a spokesman from the J.C. Penney Company catalog department.

Local residents can look in their phone books and find a number that looks like a local number, dial it and be transferred directly to us, said Dennis Fallon, telephone sales center manager in Grand Rapids, Mich.

This way, the customer is getting effective no-cost phone service and their orders are directly fed into the computerized inventory systems. The customer then knows exactly which items on his order can be immediately processed and which ones are back stocked, said officials.

This type of immediate response to order availability is something that was not available five years ago. This has had a tremendous effect on the catalog business. It used to be that the customer would go to their local store or pick up station and not know how much of his order would be there, but now the customer knows what is available, the catalog officials said.

The catalog phone order placed by local Wayne County residents goes through to a telephone center that services the area from which the caller is ordering. Hudson's catalog department sent out over one million catalogs across seven states and estimate a heavy increase in sales before its Dec. 5 cut-off date for Christmas shoppers. Hudson's, just as J.C. Penney's and other major catalog suppliers, do a big catalog business locally and overall estimate an average increase of 25 to 30 percent for home deliveries.

Today, the main source of catalog phone ordering is not done from on a local basis but from Regional Catalog Reservation Centers. "Such as the same way a consumer knows he will not be placing a local call when making a reservation for a hotel, so it is with the modern catalog phone orderer," said officials.

Those individuals who are unable to get out of the house, either for medical reasons or by choice, have the perfect alternative to fighting the shopping crowds. "With the speedier electronic systems in effect now, consumers can place an order by phone on Monday and usually receive it on Wednesday," said Fallon.

Hot items on the catalog order list for this season are name brand toys and women's fashions, traditionally. Electronics are in for a close third and some are extremely backstocked. "Portable cassette players in fashion colors are in hot demand. We have them backstocked until mid-Spring," said Fallon.

The experienced catalog shopper usually places his order early in the week and can expect to receive his request later in the week. Times to avoid when ordering by phone, if one does not want to hold the line, are usually from 10 a.m. to noon. These are the peak times people place orders. The best times are 7 a.m. or in the afternoon.

Catalog shoppers who are not quite satisfied with phone ordering might try JT's General Store method of shopping at home. The solicitors go door-to-door and rack up customers for the delivery trucks, over 85 in the local and Detroit areas, to bring everything from groceries to clothing right into your home.

The customers derived from the catalog the solicitor offers are regularly serviced from then on. "I usually spend an hour to an hour and a half with an interested consumer to make sure he fully understands the methods of our operations," said one solicitor.

The peak season for catalog centers are usually right after Thanksgiving, Christmas, and Easter, but shoppers continue to take advantage of this shopping convenience year-round.

Catalog enthusiasts may want to further their shopping opportunities by contacting the Direct Mail Marketing Association in New York at (212)-689-4977. The DMMA will put your name on an additional mailing list.

Christmas feuds can be avoided

By JOAN MARY DYER
ANP Staff Writer

'Tis the season to be jolly, but the so-called "happy holidays" are often marred by conflicts, disappointments and frustrations when families get together to celebrate.

One of the basic reasons for the family turmoil, according to psychotherapist Gene Hadwiger, is simply that - contrary to the rest of the year - families schedule more time together.

"The hours that families spend together during the holiday are often the only times when everyone is together to mull over the hurts, disappointments and frustrations of the past year," Hadwiger said. "Family members tend to quibble, argue and take pot shots at each other at the same time they are seeking 'togetherness' during the holidays."

"Some of the feelings may not be conscious ones, but when the family is together, they surface," he said. "The holidays also are the time when people tend to drink more than at other times of the year, and this lowers their ability to control their feelings."

Some of the problems that surface may date back to childhood conflicts with siblings or parents, he said. For example, a young woman returning home for the holidays may take up an unresolved quarrel with a sister or brother that had its roots back in their childhood. People may think the problem has been forgotten, but when everyone in the family is together - usually confined in close quarters - the past hurt or conflict surfaces.

Hadwiger cautioned family members to not have unrealistic expectations for the holidays. For example, if one family member is argumentative, realistically he will still be that way during the holidays. If another person tends not to show emotions, he probably will not become sentimental and misty-eyed when the Christmas carols are sung around the tree.

He recommended that individuals express their feelings honestly if they anticipate a conflict with other family members.

"For example," Hadwiger said, "Tell the person 'I'm not trying to make you feel uncomfortable, but I'm aware that we've got a problem. Let's talk about it and see if we can resolve it.'"

In some cases, this can clear the air, Hadwiger said, but in others a truce may be the only viable solution.

"If a family dispute cannot be resolved any other way, then maybe all the individuals can do is say 'I want to enjoy the holidays. Let's not bring up our disagreement while the family is together.'"

The number of divorced and remarried couples also add to the holiday tension, Hadwiger said. They have children who are "mine, yours and ours" and youngsters may have six sets of grandparents who want to see them during the holidays.

"Some people can handle the situation well, but others exhibit a lot of jealousy," he said. "There also are conflicts over where the family will spend the holidays."

Hadwiger suggested that the family "negotiate to the best possible solution." The solution may be to rotate where the family will spend the holidays or to ask the entire family to spend the day with them rather than to accept an invitation from one set of grandparents.

Gobbling up the attention

When Joth Toth began his business at the Huron Township Turkey Farm 25 years ago with 500 feathered Thanksgiving friends, he never dreamed his business would increase to the point of stocking the 5,000 turkeys he now does during the holidays.

A family business from the word go, Toth utilizes the assistance of a few neighbors and in-laws to operate the farm. Located in the very outskirts of Romulus, the farm sees a huge rush in customers beginning the Friday before Thanksgiving. That rush doesn't subside, Toth said, until just before most families are hauling the tom turkeys and plump hens out of the sink for thawing and into the roaster for golden-brown cooking.

And just who is buying the on-the-farm, pick-it-out-yourself varieties of turkeys this year? According to one worker at the farm, anyone who appreciates good taste.

"The fresh turkeys are about 6 months old when we sell them. There's a difference between store-bought and fresh turkeys," the worker said. "Once you eat a fresh turkey, you will never eat a frozen one again."

Muskegon ends Glenn title dreams in state semi-finals, 6-3

By KEITH DeMOLAY
ANP Special Writer

The clock was ticking down rapidly in the closing seconds of Saturday's Class A semi-final football game between the Rockets of Westland John Glenn and the Muskegon Big Red at Flint's Atwood Stadium. The scoreboard read: Muskegon 6 - John Glenn 3.

The inevitable result could be read in the faces of Head Coach Chuck Gordon, whose teams had never made it to the state semi-finals before, let alone win a playoff game prior to the 1986 campaign.

The sadness could also be reflected on the faces of all 42 players and two managers who gave their all for 12 weeks of the season just to reach this point. The pain of losing also shown on the faces of hundreds of loyal fans who have followed Glenn this far...only to be denied the ultimate victory.

But it was Gordon who turned to his team as the clock continued to wear down and uttered the two words that have marked every Glenn team in his tenure as head coach. He said:

"First class."

And that's the way Glenn players, managers, and coaches walked across the field to congratulate Muskegon on a hard-fought, hard-hitting victory and wish the "Big Red" well in their trip to the Pontiac Silverdome on Saturday where they will play for the Class A state title.

"It's disappointing to get this far and come up a little short," Gordon said. "However, we gave it everything we had and I'm proud of our players and the staff. When you get to this part of the season, everyone you play will be good and giving everything you had may not be good enough. We gave it our well into the fourth quarter indicated that. Their size and strength just wore us down eventually. Our defense gave us a tremendous effort and to hold them to only six points was a tremendous achievement."

Both teams had reached the semi-finals with a strong defense - John Glenn had previously defeated Ypsilanti, 10-7, and Ann Arbor Pioneer, 20-13, while Muskegon had victories over Bay City John Glenn, 26-0, and Jenison, 14-7.

With those credentials, both semifinal rivals knew they were in a defensive duel all the and long snapper Tom Walker to attempt a 42-yard field goal. But the ball sailed wide left and Muskegon had dodged a bullet.

On into the second quarter, the game went with neither team managing to make any substantial gain. For Glenn, it was Joe Franchak meeting Andre Burks on a sweep for no gain, and Mike Hammontree greeting Burks at the line of scrimmage for only a one-yard gain.

But on the other side of the fence, Muskegon's defense was equally as tough. Every time Glenn came up with a big play, such as Graham's diving catch of a Hawley pass for a first down, Muskegon would come back with a big play of their own.

"Their defense was great," Gordon said. "We were able to move the ball at times but we couldn't get any consistency going."

Pat Pettit made two key plays for Glenn that got the team going and aroused the noisy Rocket fans. First, he picked off one Rodney Burks' pass on a leaping dive, then returned another theft 24 yards. In between those two steals, senior Doug Strehl picked off a lunging dive.

But the first half ended with the score deadlocked at zero as both teams returned to their lockerrooms to discuss second half strategy.

"Obviously, we were in the game but we had to get something going on offense," Gordon later commented.

The second half began like the first half ended as the Big Red turned the ball over quick-best shot. We have nothing to be ashamed of."

For the Rockets, their memorable season ended with this loss, putting their final record at 10-2, the best in the school's history. Muskegon takes an 11-1 record to the Silverdome for their match against Sterling Heights Stevenson.

The game itself was defense personified with a capital "D" for emphasis. It has been said that defense wins championships and whoever won this game would certainly carry that banner to Pontiac.

"It was a tremendous defensive struggle," Gordon said. "The fact that it was scoreless way and a "battle for survival."

Glenn was without the services of injured tailback Paul Beasley but junior Kevin Wilson picked up some of the slack. Hawley completed a 9-yard to Jeff Graham for a first down but Muskegon soon forced the Rockets to punt.

After Muskegon also was forced to punt when their first series ended in despair, Glenn moved the ball downfield behind the running of Wilson and Kenny Jones, and in the process, picked up two first downs. After the "Big Red" defense stopped the Rockets on third down, out came kicker Tony Svaluto, holder Greg Bates,

Tiger runners make history

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Before they brought the curtains down to the 1986 high school cross country season, Belleville High's runners made history. This year's Tigers became the first Belleville women's team to qualify for the state finals where they finished 27th in a field of 140 Class A schools.

"I felt our kids had an outstanding year considering that they not only finished second in their league but also qualified for state," said Coach Peggy Curtis. "This club had set the stage for better things to come."

The four Belleville runners who qualified for state thereby entitling the team to advance are Nancy Balsbaugh, who finished seventh at the regionals with a time of 20:43. Balsbaugh also was named to the all-regional team. Junior Ann

The last hurrah — Glenn's fabulous season

Although Westland John Glenn drew first blood with Tony Svaluto's field goal and the Rockets managed to break a three-quarter scoreless deadlock in the fourth quarter, it wasn't to be for Coach Chuck Gordon's club. Glenn dropped a 6-3 decision to Muskegon in the semi-finals of the state playoffs and was eliminated from the state tournament. Svaluto (at right) is shown booting his field goal, while in the photo at the left, running back Kevin Wilson (44) leaps through the Big Red's line of defense for a first down. However, the first downs were far and in between as defense was the name of the game. ANP photos by Guy Warren, staff photographer.

Cheers and tears

The cheers faded into tears as Westland John Glenn suffered a season-ending 6-3 defeat at the hands of Muskegon Saturday. The loss came in the Class A semi-final rounds of the state football championships staged last Saturday at Flint's Atwood Stadium. Muskegon advances to the championship round to be held on Saturday against Sterling Heights Stevenson at Pontiac's Silverdome. Glenn brought the curtains down on a 11-2 over-all season, the best in the school's history. ANP photo by Guy Warren/staff photographer ly to Glenn when Kurt Kuban recovered a fumble but Muskegon stopped Glenn on three plays and punt.

Muskegon began using tailback Eddie Brown on their next series of plays. They ran off most of the time in the third period.

Brown, who was held to only 29 yards against Jenison the week before, picked up 51 yards on the drive, with Willie Wilson, Burks, and Larry Williams splitting the other 23.

But, through it all, Glenn defense was superb.

Glenn took over and managed to generate some heat in the fourth period. With 8:36 left in the game, Mark Bauschat recovered a fumble at Muskegon's 34-yard line. On the first play from scrimmage, quarterback Steve Hawley completed a 14-yard pass to Hammontree, to the 20, then Wilson picked up six more yards to the 14. One incomplete pass later, Svaluto came out and booted a 31-yard field goal and Glenn led, 3-0.

The Glenn fans reflected to October 17, when a Svaluto field goal and a tough defense were enough to stop Plymouth Salem, 3-0. Unfortunately, this wasn't to be the case.

This was also the first time this season that Muskegon had been scored upon first.

The Big Red responded to the challenge just as Glenn had in earlier playoff games.

Wilson returned the ensuing kickoff 34 yards to the Glenn 48 yard line where the "Big Red" went to work. Using Williams and Brown equally, Muskegon got the ball to the 17-yard line with only 1:46 left.

Then, quarterback Rodney Burks, who hadn't completed a pass all day, found Wilson in the corner of the end zone. Wilson, surrounded by the white shirts of Glenn, somehow made the remarkable catch to lift his team into the lead, 6-3.

There was however plenty of time for the Rockets. After all, they had gone 80 yards in five plays in the same amount of time last week against Pioneer. But a Muskegon interception ended those hopes and the Big Red ran out the clock.

For the Rocket seniors - Hawley, Bates, Hammontree, Beasley, Bryan Schwartz, Gary Cloud, Steve Erquhart, Franchak, Brian Brown, Dave Hewitt, Strehl, Ed Hyde, Steve Litwin, Walker, Harold Lovelace, Thadd Bundon, and Jeff Rice, it will be a season that they will probably never forget.

"We got phenomenal leadership from our seniors," noted Gordon who was just as proud of this team as he has been of his nine previous teams. This was supposed to be down year at Glenn. To the credit of our seniors, they didn't want to hear any of that talk. They didn't quit and went to work."

For the 23 returning juniors, it will be a goal to which they'll strive to surpass next year.

Hoover wins 'flag title'

For the second consecutive year Hoover School has captured the Wayne Parks & Recreation Youth Flag-Football playoff championship.

Hoover did it this year by turning back Taft School, 33-18.

The champs were led by Jeremy and Jason Hay, with two touchdowns apiece. Tom McGowan added one touchdown to wrap it up for Hoover. Hoover ended the season with a 5-1 won-lost season.

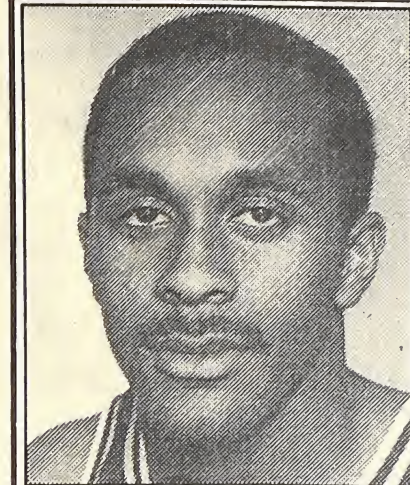

The team members included Tom McGowan, Sean Davidson, Jeremy Johnson, Jason Johnson, Jeremy Hay, Jason Hay, Kevin Justice, Kenny Abraham, Ricky Abraham, Doug Carter, John Jones, Timmy Henley, Scott Schebel, Brian Doyen, Robbie Smith, Celeste Madden, David Henry, and the team was coached by Mark Morton.

Previously, Taft defeated Roosevelt 28-0 to win the league.

Clark with the Wildcats

Westland resident, Gerald Clark, will be wearing a Northern Michigan University cage jersey this season.

Clark, a former Southgate Aquinas High standout, is expected to be a key performer on this year's Wildcat club which will be launching the 1986-87 basketball campaign after the Thanksgiving Holidays.

Tigers

Courtney placed 16th at regionals with a state qualifying time of 21:31, while senior Karen VonOtten was 26th; sophomore Laura Alberts, 29th, at the Willow Metro Park regional. Other team members are seniors Kymm Tarris, Kathy Roesner and Dee Sanders.

At state held in Flint (IMA Golf Course), the Tigers garnered enough points to finish 27th while the runners of Ann Arbor Pioneer claimed the coveted state crown. There were 190 runners in the team phase of the state championship and Belleville's entries: Balsbaugh was 53rd (20:15); and Courtney was 99th (21:03).

Other Belleville accomplishments during the history-making season included a second place finish behind league champ, Trenton, at the Wolverine 'A' Conference championship. Trenton finished 16th at the state finals. Balsbaugh proved to be the second best runners in the conference and Courtney crossed the finish line in fifth place. Both earned all-conference recognition.

"This team kept getting better with every meet," Curtis noted. "Early in the year good teams like Monroe were running all over us. Moreover, in a dual meet with Monroe, they trounced us 16-46, but we came back later in the year to place ahead of them (Monroe) in both the conference and the regional."

A winner

Senior Dan Matauch captured the 134-pound title for Michigan State at the Eastern Michigan Open with an upset of the second ranked wrestler in the nation, Michigan's John Risher, in overtime.

It was Matauch's second title effort at the Michigan State Invitational.

The Spartan wrestlers won three championships.

Seeking the 'Hideaway'

Westland restaurant named before tornado

By BOB DENYS
ANP Staff Writer

Bob's Hideaway Restaurant celebrated its eighth anniversary last week. And although advertisements promise the "road house" restaurant is worth hunting for, Bob's Hideaway is not hidden anymore.

"We gave the business this name because the trees in front blocked the building. That was until the tornado came about six years ago," said Bob Cuddeback who with his wife of 30 years, Billie, has dished up basic American food at this location for almost 20 years.

"No doubt about it, we are off the beaten path," he admitted.

Cuddeback modestly stated, "I wouldn't say this is a gourmet restaurant but we serve some gourmet food. We're slightly different from the ordinary road house. Really, it's a classy place. Our specialty is prime rib and I know we have the best within 20 miles."

Also on the menu are two or three daily specials, pasta, steaks, chops and "heavy on seafood." "We offer some ethnic food, Italian and lately Mexican," he added.

The restaurant seats 200 people.

For Thanksgiving, the Cuddebacks have planned a buffet feast with 40 different items, including five meats and shrimp. "A complete meal with all the trimmings. People won't go away hungry. They can't," he promised.

His culinary experience dates back years ago when as a veteran, his local American Legion Hall burned down. "Cooking had always been a hobby. When the hall burned down, we started to put on these fund-raising 'feeds.' That's where I really learned to cook for large numbers of people. You might say I'm an amateur cook," he admitted.

He says he's a good cook and likes to cook anything but breakfast. "Billie and I owned a truck stop at Michigan and Wyoming for nine years. We served 1,500 people a day. I can't look at another egg."

Before the restaurant business, Cuddeback sold cars and owned a dealership. "Right now I wish I'd stayed in that business. When I got tired of the car business I opened the restaurant. There's no comparison between the two. Both businesses are affected by the economy. It's like a rollercoaster, up and down," he said.

Bob's Hideaway presents entertainment four nights a week. The David James three-piece combo, who "sound better than Neil Diamond," perform Wednesday through Saturday, according to Cuddeback.

Bob and Billie Cuddeback

"It's a big argument in the restaurant business, did the food bring the customers in or did the entertainment? You be the judge," he urged.

Job training agency is lauded, again

Three national awards will be presented to the Livonia-based Wayne County Private Industry Corporation for top achievements in program administration, performance and special projects by the National Association of Counties of Washington, D.C.

The PIC is a nonprofit, private-sector job training body which serves to work with local business and industry to train and retrain employees to ensure longevity of employment.

The awards came only two months after the PIC received the National Alliance of Business top award for having the best job training and placement program in the United States.

The job training agency serves most of the business communities in western Wayne County, while operating satellite offices and a main branch in Livonia.

Oh, Tann

Humble Christmas t

Christmas Ideas warns not to use candles on your tree; substitute electric lights instead.

A pagan practice of decorating branches with fruit and flowers was translated into a Christian paradise tree. The tree was first shown to churchgoers as a symbol of Christ, the Tree of Life, says Christmas Ideas.

A common substitute for the evergreen tree in Germany was the pyramid, a wooden structure adorned with green branches, apples, nuts and lights.

Pyramid trees were popular among the bourgeoisie and were kept from one Christmas to another.

As America expanded its boundaries during the 19th century, the Christmas tree custom traveled westward with pioneers. Far from the well-established eastern and southern cities where sophisticated ornaments were available, tree decorating was a make-do affair.

Whatever was available was used. Nuts, pinecones, precious sticks of cinnamon or dried apples strung into small wreaths, figures of animals and people cut from cookie dough and popcorn balls festooned with cranberries were all added to the gay mix of American tree traditions.

Scandinavian Christmas customs blended with neighboring German customs in the settlements of the American Northwest.

In 17th-century Sweden, small pines divested of their bark and greens were placed outside doors at Christmastime. Like the German pyramid, they were kept from year to year and brought out for the holiday celebration.

With the coming of the German tradition of trees inside the home, the stripped pine tree was brought indoors and decorated with cookies and paper ornaments.

Out of the American prairie where evergreens were scarce, the stripped pine tree became a handmade stick tree.

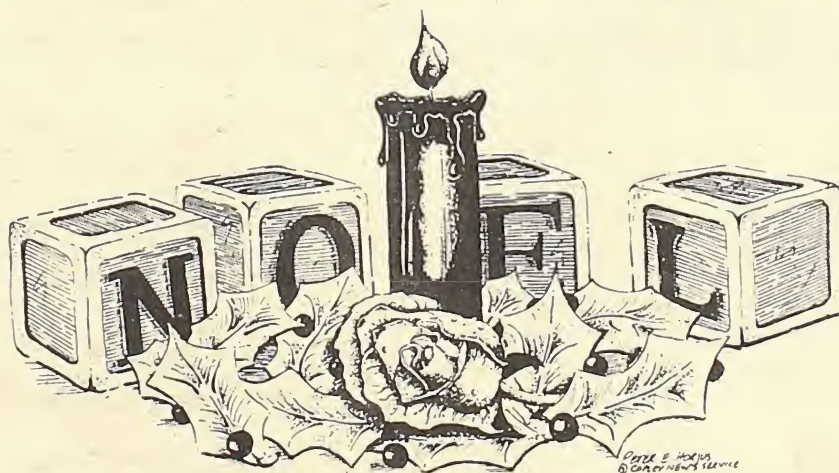

Northern European immigrants brought the custom of remembering the winter birds. Bits of suet, fruit and bread were hung from the evergreen trees for the birds' Christmas dinner.

Christmas decor begins with creativity

Christmas is a time when your whole house can become a backdrop for holiday galas, festive suppers and intimate family gatherings.

But you don't need a design specialist to create an unforgettable holiday stage. Just muster a little creativity and some supplies from your favorite department store, craft retailer or florist. Even the most ornate decorations can be easy on the Christmas coffer.

If you want guests to make a memorable entrance, why not start by decorating the door? "Beautiful Parties: A Practical Guide to Entertaining With Flowers, Food & Flair," (Taylor, 1986) written by authors Diana McDermott and Sandi Britton, suggests decorating the door like a giant present by wrapping it from top to bottom and side to side with a wide ribbon, then tying a giant bow at the top of the frame. Because wide ribbon is hard to find, you can make your own by cutting a pretty, silky fabric to the desired width and finishing the edges with a seam.

Inside, you'll want the scents of Christmas everywhere. Simmer potpourri on the stove or stash freshly cut evergreen boughs somewhere in the house. Better Homes and Gardens Christmas Ideas suggests gathering pine needles, orange peel, spices, pinecones and herbs and assembling a wreath or tray from the dried mixture.

Decking the halls with boughs of holly is still fashionable in the 1980s.

Or, use branches of mistletoe, pine, ivy, cedar, juniper, fir, spruce, cypress or boxwood to adorn the fireplace, mantle, banisters, window ledges, tables and other furniture. Or use them as centerpieces, arranging them so the stems don't show and adorning your arrangement with candles, pinecones and berries. You can arrange greens around your favorite Christmas symbol, such as the nativity.

Loop evergreen ropes across mantels, hung with miniature Christmas lights and small Christmas tree balls. Secure the same ropes around a banister with lush velvet ribbon.

For a festive centerpiece, create your own topiary tree. You or your florist can make them from Styrofoam balls, one on top of the other with a space between, stuck onto a rod painted green and held in place with a pot filled with plaster of Paris. Tiny pieces of boxwood are inserted in the Styrofoams, creating a green background. At intervals, insert tiny white or pink roses, each in its own aqua pick. Then wrap green cloth around the base.

For a quaint country celebration, revive the custom of the "kissing ball." Form a ball from large mesh wire and cover with sprigs of boxwood, mistletoe or holly. Insert several red roses in individual aquatubes around the sphere and hang the ball with red ribbon in a doorway. To keep your kissing ball fresh, refill the tubes with tepid water daily, according to the Rose Information Bureau.

Santa bear is the biggest gift rage

We may be barely into the holiday season, but Santabear has already come out of hibernation and is making appearances in some unexpected places this season.

In addition to shoppers seeing the plush teddy bear in Hudson's stores, Santabear can be found this season in books, cassettes, on television, in an ice show and even on cereal boxes.

The busy bear is the subject of a book, "Santabear's First Christmas," and will appear at B. Dalton stores as well as Hudson's prior to the holidays. He also is making special appearances with Ice Capades and is the subject of a television special to be aired at 7:30 p.m. Nov. 29.

Santabear also will be visiting the Westland Mall on Dec. 13 and 17 to have breakfast with youngsters at Hudson's Westland store.

Biographical information about Santabear reveals that he was born in Minneapolis, Minn., in 1985. During the summer of 1986, Santabear made guest appearances at parades and festivals throughout the Midwest.

Delightful dolls will keep them all smiling

Little girls have always expected to find a doll under the tree on Christmas morning, but today women of all ages are looking forward to gifts of dolls during the holidays.

"This year porcelain dolls are the most popular gift item," said Maçon Murch, who with his wife, Joyce, owns Dolls by Joyce in Westland.

Murch attributes the renewed interest in antique doll reproductions to a quest by the public for quality and excellence and also to a renewed interest in our heritage and traditions.

The antique doll reproductions are "works of art" rather than children's toys, Murch said, and provide a lasting gift which can be passed down.

He also noted that a favorite doll can be repaired in their workshop. The work, which is done primarily by Murch, can restore a doll to what will appear to be perfection.

The shop, which is presently located at 898 N. Wayne Road, is slated to move to a new site at 8404 N. Wayne Road on Jan. 2.
